

An exciting city walk in the history of Athens through Stamps

Would you like to see Athens through different eyes?

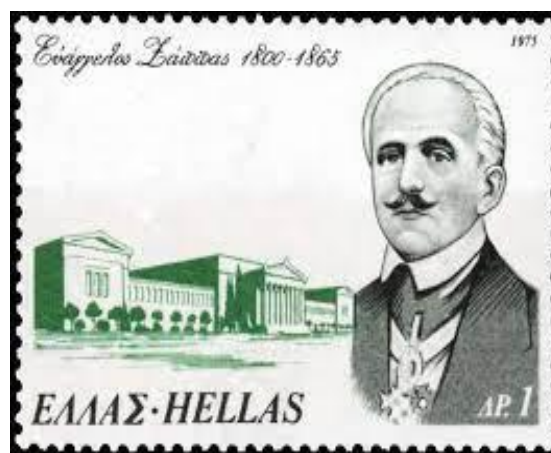

If you want to travel in the long history of Athens in an original way, then join us in the first walking philatelic tour within the City Center. This exciting tour will travel us through philately in the most important and well known Monuments, and “hidden” corners of old times as well. During this original walking tour, we will have the chance to listen to stories of Athens and of Greece through the Monuments that were chosen to illustrate the stamps, and to talk about the history, the value and the depiction of each stamp.

Among the several monuments, we will be guided in the Panathinaikon Stadium narrating the history of the Olympic Games, and the commemorative issues of stamps that were issued on the occasion of the First Modern Olympic Games. Then, strolling around the National Garden, we shall be able to wander in the philatelic depiction of the Greek Revolution, on the occasion of the 200th year Anniversary of the Greek War of Independence. Zappeio, the building hosting the NOTOS 2021, will be offer us the opportunity to talk about the Greek benefactors that were depicted on in the Greek stamps. The New Acropolis Museum, the statue of Maria Kallas, the Herodion are among the monuments that will allow us to discover the Greek way of thinking that had an impact on philately as well.

The way we narrate our story and identify ourselves as a Nation can be shown on these magic small paper artworks that will reveal to us the explicit and implicit secrets of the City.

An appealing walking tour not only for the Philatelists but for everyone that wishes to explore the history of Athens in an original way.
